

Tomorrow Could Be the Day!

A disillusioned husband asked me, "Why is it that my wife thinks it's okay for our 17-year-old son to take the car and stay out as often and as long as he pleases but let me try to get a night out, or come home an hour late, and she has a fit?"

"In fact, a zealous district attorney prosecuting a vicious murderer in comparison to her is as quiet as a brain surgeon in the middle of a delicate operation."

Many husbands will agree that he has made his point effectively.

Be honest and realistic, your children, who don't have maturity enough to think for themselves, let alone know right from wrong, are permitted to run loose and unchaperoned at all hours.

But the man who holds down a successful job, is the pillar of the community and church (and even if he's not, he's still older than his teen son), who has kept you and your family together to these many years, must always explain his whereabouts in minute detail whenever he's a bit late.

Does not this adult you chose to lead you and his offspring through life have enough intelligence to know when to come in out of the rain? Where is your faith?

Or is it something else, some other reason, such as personal insecurity, that causes you to suspect and pry?

Only in this country does the wife ask such personal questions of her husband. In any other country it would be grounds for a good thrashing or even divorce.

There are three good reasons why your husband may be late. Knowing these, you need no longer scream at him: "Where have you been? Give an accounting of yourself!"

1—He may have to work late at the money factory. Some husbands are tied up in conference and can't get to a phone.

Others, who can, won't because they don't want to feel trapped or have coworkers think they are henpecked.

2 — He comes home late after a bit of fortification on the way because he knows the minute he opens the door he'll be hit by a big drafty mouth, whining, accusing and abusing. You're his battle axe, dull though you are.

3 — He may be late because he's been visiting a little bluebird of happiness whose nest he is feathering. With her singing by his side he figures all is not yet lost despite you.

So, my dears, next time your beast arrives on the front doorstep, instead of questioning and treating him as a naughty baby, close your mouth and be happy he showed up at all.

Fewer and fewer husbands are showing up every day. Tomorrow could be your off day.

Ann Landers Gets

Ann Loses Battle Of School Nurses

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with you about school nurses. In our school the only way a kid can get sent home is if the coroner pronounces him officially dead.

Last year during a measles epidemic the school nurse wouldn't let anybody go home, no matter how sick they were. When I nearly passed out the teacher sent me to the nurse. She told me to lie down on the cot for half an hour. When the nurse left the room I got up and phoned by mother. Mom came to get me and I had a temperature of 104 degrees.

The way you sided with the school nurse makes me think you must have been a school nurse yourself before you were Ann Landers. True or false?—HOOSIER STATE

Dear Hoosier: False. I was never a school nurse but I did try (unsuccessfully) to fool a few school nurses in my day.

The mail on this subject has been running 20 to 1 against me. I'm ready to admit there must be some pretty hard-boiled school nurses around — or you kids have a mighty strong union.

Dear Ann Landers: Jack and I have been married 16 years. We have two children in school. My husband is the only son who has allowed his father to run his life. His older brothers moved out of town (lucky people) but we are stuck because Jack works for his father. His hope is that one day he will inherit the business but he has nothing in writing.

Jack's hours are killing. In fact he has NO hours. He is in the store morning, noon, and night. He draws no salary. His father does out whatever he feels like giving — and it's never enough. We are forever stalling bill collectors and I am sick of it. The business does well and there is no reason for my father-in-law to be so tight. I have begged my husband to stand up like a man and tell his father he wants a salary, part ownership, and an annual vacation but he says "Not yet." What can I do?—SOUND AND FURY

Dear Sound: Your husband's dependency on his father is an old and a sick story. You need a third party to help put this papa-sonny boy relationship on a business basis.

Does your husband have an attorney? If not, he should engage one. As a starter, the attorney should be hired to draw up your husband's will. Then he should insist on a steady salary, equity arrangements, and other details which have been too long neglected.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night the clown I'm married to showed me a copy of the letter he wrote to you. For Lord's sake please don't print it!

I've been through so much with this ape I couldn't take another blow. All I need is for that letter to appear in the paper and I'd head for the bridge. The big jerk even signed his right name.

This is an urgent plea, Ann. I beg of you, please don't let me down. — ON MY KNEES

Get off your knees and stop worrying. I never use the real name of a troubled reader—and I never will. I have your husband's letter before me and you have my word it will NOT appear in the paper.

Confidential to PLENTY SHOOK: Your letter indicates that you do not know what homosexuality is. Discuss this with your doctor and inform yourself instead of tossing around misinformation.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (c) 1964 Publishers Newspaper Syndicate

Seelye Elected to Chair College Advisory Board

Howard Seelye of Palos Verdes Estates has been elected president of the newly created Advisory Board of the California State College at Palos Verdes. Samuel Stewart of Redondo Beach will serve as vice chairman.

The nine-member board, which has representatives from all parts of the college service area, will serve in an advisory capacity to the college during its formative years.

Board committees also were established. New committees and their members are: campus planning and development—Jerry L. Moss and Paul F. Gilmore; public affairs—Donald P. Loker and Thomas G. Smith; student activities—Seelye. A fourth committee for educational policy will be established later.

The advisory board also adopted a resolution urging voters to approve Proposition 2 in November. The bond issue would provide $380 million for higher education facilities in the state.

A Penny for your Thoughts

This week the Pennies Photographer asked two related questions to several ladies of the community, "What is your favorite type of music?" and "What do you think of the Beatles?"

Mrs. James Clauson, 144 Calle de Andaluia, Redondo Beach: "Pop ul r music. I like the Beatles, I especially like the beat in the music they play."

Mrs. Carol Wood, 3232 Artesia Ave.: "I like semi-classical mood music, such as 'I Love Paris.' It's good therapy. I don't think much of the Beatles."

Mrs. Adel Burchfield, 1415 Post St.: "Light Opera, such as 'The Student Prince'. I wish more shows of this type were presented in the area. I like the rhythm of the music they play, but I don't like the Beatles."

Mrs. Ida Hechinger, 17038 Faysmith Ave.: "I enjoy show tunes and folk music. As for Beatles, I could do very well without them."

Mrs. Golda Bight, 17109 Elgar Ave.: "My favorite is organ music of every kind, from Bach to Jazz. I really enjoy joining a group of people in a song-fest, too. I think the Beatles are great! They won't last, but I like them."

Two Win Northrop Diplomas

Michael E. Sims and Daniel T. Desmond, both of Torrance, have graduated from Northrop Institute of Technology with bachelor of science degrees in electronic engineering.

Both new graduates were active in the student chapter of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers while pursuing their studies at Northrop Institute.

Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Sims of 18824 Corrise Ave., has accepted a position as a programmer with Space and Information Systems division. He is a graduate of North High School.

Desmond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Desmond, 2412 Andree Ave., is a Torrance High graduate. He is a veteran of the U. S. Air Force.

Anza Students Elect Officers

William Findley has been elected president of the Anza School student council. The election was held Friday after an assembly program at the school.

Other officers are Kathleen Baird, vice president, and Laura Lee, secretary. George Chalkson, vice principal, is the student council advisor.
